

ABSTRACT

Cell based methods designed to assess intracellular and extracellular activities and interactions and to identify compounds and conditions that modulate such activities and interactions are provided.

- 5 The cell based methods employ capture systems that display collections of tagged molecules specifically linked to capture agents.